The 2000 election of the 113th Congress is noteworthy for one reason: It was the first time that a woman was elected to the House of Representatives. In 1992, Patsy Mink was the first woman to be elected to the House, and I have an excellent memory of her visit to the state capital in 1993.

Light—The light source used in the study was a 100-watt incandescent lamp. The light intensity was measured with a light meter (Lutron, Model LM-20) and was found to be 100 foot-candles (10.8 lux) at the distance of 18 inches from the lamp. The light intensity was maintained at this level throughout the study.

Figure 1 shows a 2D hexagonal lattice of atoms. A central atom is labeled '1'. It is surrounded by six atoms in a hexagonal arrangement, labeled '2' through '7'. The distance between the central atom and each of these six atoms is labeled r_0 . The lattice extends further outwards, with additional atoms labeled '8' and '9' shown at larger distances. The overall structure is a regular hexagonal grid.

The screenshot shows a Mathematica notebook with two cells. The first cell contains the code:

Plot[1/(1 + x^2), {x, -10, 10}, PlotRange -> All]

The second cell contains the code:

Plot[D[1/(1 + x^2), x], {x, -10, 10}, PlotRange -> All]

The output of the first cell is a plot of the function $y = \frac{1}{1+x^2}$, which is a bell-shaped curve centered at $x=0$ with a maximum value of 1. The output of the second cell is a plot of the derivative $y = \frac{-2x}{(1+x^2)^2}$, which is an odd function passing through the origin, with a local maximum at $x=-1$ and a local minimum at $x=1$.

The diagram illustrates the experimental setup for measuring the rate of reaction. It consists of a reaction vessel (a conical flask) containing a solution of a reactant. A stirrer is used to mix the solution, and a thermometer is placed in the solution to monitor its temperature. The reaction vessel is connected to a gas collection system. This system includes a gas syringe, which is used to measure the volume of gas produced during the reaction. The gas syringe is connected to a delivery tube that leads into a water trough. The gas is collected in the water trough, displacing water. The volume of gas collected is measured by the displacement of water in the trough. The diagram is labeled with various components and their functions, such as 'reaction vessel', 'stirrer', 'thermometer', 'gas syringe', and 'water trough'.

TV ratings showdown pumps up Cebu City

By Corina C. Francisco

Staff Writer, Manila

MANILA, Sept. 17 (AP) — The battle for the TV ratings crown in the Philippines is heating up, with networks vying for the top spot in the country's largest market, Cebu City.

The competition is fierce, with networks like ABS-CBN, GMA, and RPN all vying for the top spot. The ratings war is expected to continue for some time, as networks look to attract more viewers and advertisers.

The ratings war is not just a matter of pride for the networks, but also a matter of survival. In a market where advertising revenue is crucial, high ratings are essential for attracting advertisers.

The ratings war is also a reflection of the growing competition in the Philippine TV market. With more networks entering the market, the competition is becoming increasingly intense.

Transmission line project

By Abigail L. Flo

THE BOARD of National Transmission Corp. (Transco) has awarded to Marubeni Corp. the contract for the construction of the P220-million San Roque-San Manuel line to allow the full dispatch of electricity from the San Roque hydropower facility in Pangasinan.

Transco president and chief executive Alan Ortiz said the contract award effectively allowed the state firm to avoid having to pay contractual obligations worth P17 million a day.

He said these obligations were fixed cost penalties that Transco would have had to pay if the 345-megawatt (MW) San Roque plant could not be dispatched at its nominated capacity of 80 MW.

The recently awarded contract would entail the construction of a dedicated 10-kilometer, 230-kilovolt transmission line that will allow the full or near-full capacity dispatch of the San Roque power facility.

This line will likewise connect the hydropower facility to the Luzon grid.

Ortiz said the new dedicated line would take about six months to complete.

The San Roque-San Manuel line is seen to drive down the cost of power generated by the San Roque facility, at least for the electricity beyond the 80-MW nominated capacity.

A Transco official said power outside of the nominated capacity from the San Roque facility could be sold at P1.50 per kilowatt-hour (kWh).

However, since the San Roque facility was hydro in nature, he said production beyond the nominated capacity would not be very feasible in the summer months.

The dedicated transmission line for the San Roque power project is part of Transco's Luzon Island Transmission Augmentation Program or Project LITA.

The San Manuel-San Roque line is one of the short-term additions under Project LITA.

Another recently completed part of Project LITA's short-term plans was the upgrading of the Bataan-Davao-Manila transmission line, which allowed the higher dispatch of Manila Electric Co. independent power producers Sta. Rosa and San Lorenzo facilities.

The higher IEP dispatch resulted in a reduction in Mercha charges by 37.5 centavos per kWh.

The study found a significant association between a low level of education (below high school) and a low level of health literacy (below basic) in the general population. This finding is consistent with previous research that has shown that individuals with lower levels of education are more likely to have lower levels of health literacy.

1. Identify the main topic. The main topic of the passage is the impact of climate change on the environment.

2. Identify the main idea. The main idea of the passage is that climate change is causing significant damage to the environment, and we need to take action to prevent further damage.

3. Identify the supporting details. The supporting details of the passage include the following:

- Climate change is causing the Earth's temperature to rise.
- This is leading to the melting of glaciers and ice sheets.
- This is causing sea levels to rise.
- This is leading to the extinction of many species.
- This is causing droughts and wildfires.
- This is causing hurricanes and other extreme weather events.

4. Identify the conclusion. The conclusion of the passage is that we need to take action to prevent further damage to the environment.

of 10 to 1000 years. However, a more detailed study by Wright et al. (1990) in Michigan and Ontario, Canada, found that glacial ice can persist in some upland depressions for up to 10,000 years.

Following extensive site preparation, a second round of site preparation was completed in May 1996. The second round of site preparation consisted of the removal of all vegetation within the 100-m² study area. The vegetation was removed by hand pulling and by using a brush cutter. The vegetation was then removed from the site and disposed of in a landfill.

On March 1, 2004, the company announced a new price of $700 per acre, up from $600 per acre in 2003. It is a 16% increase from the previous year. The new price will be paid in two installments: $350 per acre in 2004 and $350 per acre in 2005. The company also announced that it will be paying $100 per acre in 2004 and $100 per acre in 2005 for the first two years of the contract.

The biggest problem for the development of the UK is the fact that the country is not a member of the European Union. This means that the UK is not able to benefit from the EU's structural funds, which are used to help less developed regions. The UK is also not able to participate in the EU's research and development programs, which are funded by the EU. This is a major disadvantage for the UK, as it means that the country is not able to take full advantage of the opportunities that the EU offers.

These two factors alone could lead to huge increases in the number of people who are unemployed.

Further, in 1991, just one year after the implementation of the 1989 amendments, 90 percent of the 100,000+ people who are in the United States had been born in a foreign country.

Non-diet approach to weight loss

It's not the diet that's the magic ingredient for losing weight, it's the lifestyle changes that go along with it. And that's the key to long-term weight loss, according to a new study from the University of California, San Diego.

The study, which was published in the journal Obesity, found that people who followed a non-diet approach to weight loss—focusing on lifestyle changes like eating more fruits and vegetables, exercising, and getting more sleep—lost more weight than those who followed a traditional diet. The study also found that the non-diet group was more likely to maintain their weight loss over time.

The researchers say that the non-diet approach is more sustainable than dieting because it doesn't require drastic changes to eating habits. Instead, it focuses on making small, healthy choices that can be maintained long-term. The study also found that the non-diet group was more likely to maintain their weight loss over time.

Eat smart

According to a study, you can lose weight without dieting by making smart choices about what you eat and how you live.

• Focus on eating more fruits and vegetables.

• Get more sleep.

• Exercise more.

The study found that people who followed a non-diet approach to weight loss lost more weight than those who followed a traditional diet. The study also found that the non-diet group was more likely to maintain their weight loss over time.
